

Dred and Harriet Scott and the Struggle for Freedom's Birthright

Dred Scott's mark on 1846 freedom suit

They had for more than a century before been regarded as beings of an inferior order, and altogether unfit to associate with the white race, either in social or political relations; and so far inferior, that they had no rights which the white man was bound to respect; and that the negro might justly and lawfully be reduced to slavery for his benefit.

–Chief Justice Roger B. Taney, 1857

Fourteenth Amendment (1866 / 1868)

Section 1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

Civil War & Reconstruction Online Course, House Divided Project, Dickinson College

<http://housedivided.dickinson.edu/sites/civilwar/course-syllabus-2/part-1-coming-of-war/>